

Leadership survival skills

FOR EDUCATION ADMINISTRATORS & TEACHERS

The LTrek® mission is to inspire, challenge and equip leaders to achieve great heights.

LEADERSHIP SURVIVAL SKILLS FOR EDUCATION ADMINISTRATORS & TEACHERS

Just as in the wilderness, where skills such as building a fire are needed to survive, every teacher and education administrator need essential skills to survive the school year. These two practical, yet powerful training programs are packed with adventurous experiential learning activities that bring training to life. Leadership Survival Skills for Teachers and Leadership Survival Skills for Education Administrators empower participants with tools needed to enrich work experiences, strengthen teams, reduce conflict, improve morale, enhance trust and communication among teachers and administrators, and to ultimately free up time needed to focus on the world's noblest mission, education.

Leadership Trek® is a leadership skills transformation system, through which teams set out on a journey to explore core leadership skills and their connection to both personal and organizational success. This practical, yet powerful system, utilized as either a leadership primer or refresher, challenges both aspiring and experienced leaders to commit to new action steps and behavior practices, that ultimately lead to personal leadership transformation and improved results.

When accomplished as a team, a Leadership Trek® is not only a unique experience, but it is also the ultimate team building experience, because it gets teams "back to the basics," and sparks rich discussions that strengthen teams, bring forth new ideas, and spur creative solutions.

Authors, Rachel Woods, J.D. and Dr. Mitchell Neubert, Ph.D., build on over 30 years of research and development by Dr. Clifton Williams, to create a leadership transformation system fit for all four generations in the workplace today.
